Course description
This course is an introduction to the philosophy of religion in the Western monotheistic tradition. Drawing on both historical and contemporary sources, we will examine some of the main philosophical problems that arise from Western monotheistic religion. How should we understand God’s attributes such as omnipotence, necessary existence, perfect goodness, and omniscience? Are these attributes mutually compatible? Is God’s omniscience and omnipotence compatible with human free will? Can there be proofs or persuasive arguments for the existence of God? Are there persuasive arguments against the existence of God? Can belief in God be rational? If so, in what sense? What is the relationship between God and morality? Authors discussed will include, among others, Anselm, Aquinas, Clifford, Hick, Hume, James, Kant, Mackie, Molina, Paley, Pascal, Plantinga, and Rowe.

Learning goals
• Understand the main philosophical questions, problems, concepts, arguments, and theories that arise from the Western monotheistic religious tradition.
• Develop fundamental philosophical and critical thinking skills. These include the ability to (i) construct, reconstruct, and evaluate arguments in one’s own words, (ii) understand complex philosophical problems, concepts, arguments, theories, (iii) closely and critically read historical and contemporary philosophical texts, and (iv) write clearly and concisely.

Texts
There are no texts for purchase. The readings will be made available at:

Assessments and grading policy
Your final grade will be based on your attendance, two take-home exams, one short midterm paper, and one longer final paper.

Your attendance to the class will be worth 10% of your final grade. You will have 2 free unexcused absences. After that, each unexcused absence will lower your grade. If you have to miss a class, please use the University absence reporting website https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/ to indicate the date and reason for your absence.

The two take-home exams will be worth 45% of your final grade (20% and 25% respectively). They will be short essay questions about the content of the readings and the lectures. I will give you the questions one week before the due date. The exams will be due via email by 11:59pm on February 22\textsuperscript{nd} and April 12\textsuperscript{th}.

Your papers, will also be worth 45% of your final grade (15% for the midterm and 30% for the final). In your papers, you will explore in detail a topic of each half of the course that particularly interested you. A list of possible questions for each paper will be made available on the course webpage. You can choose a question/topic that is not on the list, but I must approve it by February 22\textsuperscript{nd} for the midterm and by April 5\textsuperscript{th} for the final. The midterm will have to be 1500-2000 words long and will be due via email by March 24\textsuperscript{th}, 11:59pm. The final paper will have to be 3000-4000 words long and will be due via email by May 10\textsuperscript{th}, 11:59pm.

Late assignments will receive lower marks. You will lose one grade step (e.g. from A- to B+) for each day late.
