Introduction to Ethics

1. Course Description / Objectives

This course aims at helping students to think about the moral dimensions of human existence by exposing them to (1) theoretical and (2) practical issues in ethics. Some of the questions we will ask are: how should we conduct our lives?; how can we be morally righteous and virtuous?; what kinds of ethical theories are there to help us make right decisions?; what if there are conflicting moral recommendations from different theories?; how are we to resolve differences of moral opinions?; what is the distinctive nature of moral judgment?; why should I be moral in the first place?; to what degree does religion play a role in ethical decisions?; how is ethics related to the diverse areas such as law, health care, or politics as practiced in today's society?, and so forth. (There is no prerequisite to this course, except a curious and rigorous mind.)

This course has been certified as a Core Curriculum course:
SAS Core Code: Philosophical or Theoretical Issues (AHo)

"Examine critically philosophical and other theoretical issues concerning the nature of reality, human experience, knowledge, value, and/or cultural production."

2. Reading Materials

♦ Most of the readings will be from:

    Louis P. Pojman & James Fieser,
    Ethics: Discovering Right and Wrong
    (Pub. Cengage Learning; Ed. 7th.)

♦ Additional reading materials will be made available in PDF.
3. Grade Determinants

3.1. 50% ... on Pass/Fail basis

♦ (40%) Individual Reports (IR) ... as weekly or bi-weekly assignment:

On a weekly basis, a set of new modules opens up with Themes of questions, to which each of you will be asked to reply after absorbing the instructional contents contained therein. Most likely, there will be 8 times of IR assignments throughout the semester.

♦ (10%) Team Report (TR) ... one-time as a leader in a team:

Each student will take turn in performing the role of leading a discussion within a 3-member team; and will be asked to submit a written report.

3.2. 50% ... to be graded

♦ (40%) In-class Final Exam (FE):

in-class exam comprised of short essay type questions that everyone will be familiar with from the lectures, readings, and assignments throughout the semester:

Scheduled ... Sat., May 5th, 1-4:00 pm
Location ... TBA (on College Ave. Campus)

♦ (10%) Essay (EY):

7–10 pages; to be argumentative on an issue discussed in class;
Abstract & Bibliography (AB) required for approval prior to writing.
4. Course Website (at Sakai)

♦ Logon to Sakai with your Rutgers NetID and password at:

https://sakai.rutgers.edu/portal

♦ Select your section of the course:

19S  Ethics  (T)

NB:  (T) will be persistently used to refer to this course, in place of the section number, (01:730:107:91)

5. Course Composition:  8 Parts

The whole course is comprised of the following 8 parts:

1. Ethical Theories: Applications
2. Ethical Theories: Foundations
3. Ethical Theories: Classic & Modern
4. Ethical Reasoning & Argumentation
5. Ethical Choice and Human Condition
6. Ethical Inquiry into Social Justice
7. Ethical Inquiry into Abortion
8. Issues in Meta-Ethics

These 8 parts are listed on the left column of the 1st web page on the course website, each with a click-able linkage on it, respectively leading to its component modules. Each part, in turn, contains multiple lecture modules, thereby adding up to about 60 or more modules, all in all.
6. Course Structure: Modus Operandi

♦ In the 2nd half of the course (after studying Parts 1, 2, 3, & 4), everyone will be assigned to a 3-member discussion team according to the alphabetical order of your last names.

♦ Each team will discuss the next three Parts, 5, 6, & 7, by utilizing an interactive multimedia platform, Meetings (BBB) at Sakai course website. In due time, every one will have opportunities to familiarize oneself with BBB.

♦ Each of the three members in a team will take turn in performing the role of a leader by assuming the following 2 responsibilities:

   (a) leading the discussion (by posing the questions; gathering and sorting answers; & trying to formulate a consensus through exchanging persuasive argumentations; & also sharing differences, if inconclusive)

   (b) submitting a report on what the team thereby discussed in terms of agreements and disagreements on various aspects of the issue being discussed (this will meet the requirement of TR).

♦ The Individual Report (IR) will be assigned on new modules of instructional contents made available on a weekly basis. IR is primarily for you to get initially knowledgeable about each issue on a self-paced basis by absorbing introductory lectures delivered in streaming video, doing the assigned readings, and replying to the Themes of questions posed and explained in each of the modules. It will culminate in the two ending phases, (1) Summing Up (where your instructor shall deliver a comprehensive lecture in video on the issue) and (2) Team Discussion (where students will discuss among them within a team). Students shall have ample opportunities to get familiar with the process.

♦ The Team Report (TR) will serve as a platform in which students get to realize that it is a vitally important intellectual virtue to actively engage in a dialogue with others by being able to express one’s own view and also by being able to listen to others, not just passively watch others argue with one another.

♦ These two reports, IR and TR, are designed to give you the basic (practically on pass/fail basis) credits (up to 50%) in following the basic paths of the course. Therefore, you should not assume that, just by virtue of doing the routine reports, you get to know all there is to know for final exam since there will be substantive lectures on which the final exam will be based.

♦ Everyone should keep track of the accumulated credit points from IR and TR, not to mention the instructional contents studied in each module, as they will be the basis for the final exam.
7. On IT-preparedness, Email Communications, Netiquette, etc.

♦ Your instructor intends to utilize the best of what IT can offer for e-Learning to convey the richness of Ethics as a discipline that this course represents. Beyond basic computing experiences (e.g., web browsing, word processing, emailing, etc.), everyone shall have a chance to familiarize oneself with a state-of-the-art multimedia platform (Meetings via BBB), which will be instrumental for conducting the role of discussion leader in a team that one will be assigned to. (It is highly recommended that one's computing environment is equipped with a webcam; otherwise, the Chat Room will be implemented as the alternative platform.)

♦ We will get to utilize multimedia (a.k.a. Edutainment), which will prove to be an indispensable part of the course along with readings as the Themes (questions) in the IR assignments.

♦ Everyone is required to send the following information to instructor's email (“not to be left out of email database”):

   (1) Last Name & First Name
   (2) 2 Email Addresses (one primary + another for backup)
   (3) Major & Year (e.g., Chemistry, Junior)
   (4) brief description of reasons for taking the course
   (5) whether you have taken online course before or not

♦ In order for your email to be properly identified in your instructor’s sea of emails, you should put the following line in the subject heading of your email:

   (T) Your Last Name, “Contents”
   where (T) replaces the section number, 01:730:107:91

♦ Use the following email addresses of your instructor:

   Ethics.Kang@gmail.com       (primary)
   dr.steven.kang@gmail.com    (backup; only when needed)

♦ Everyone is expected to observe “Netiquette,” i.e., network etiquette, as basic courtesy to one another. Your instructor shall hold anyone responsible for any misconducts which will be subject to academic discipline according to the university rules.
8. Note on IT aspect of e-Learning

The adoption of video-streaming (in 'mp4' files) for making course contents available asynchronously has been a careful choice by your instructor to utilize one of the most updated multimedia compression technologies. I have had quite satisfactory experiences with it, which I wouldn't expect anything less this time as well.

There will be always room for improvement in terms of catching up ever-changing IT; and also we have to grant that especially in terms of interactivity on the spot between instructor and students, online instructions should not be compared to in-class instructions. But from the past experiences, your instructor is totally convinced that students can learn course materials online as effectively as in-class (quite often even better than in-class). It is a huge advantage that course materials can be accessed from any place and time convenient for students, and as many times as necessary.

9. University Policies & Services

9.1 On Academic Integrity:
